The Website

How to sign in, and how to change things on the garden website itself

This is the second guide. The first one covers the Orchestrator, which is where most plant work happens. This one covers the website itself, and the phone app.

> There is no separate admin page
>
> Some websites have a page at /admin or /dashboard. This website does not. Typing those addresses gives an error page. That is correct, not broken.
>
> On this website, the admin is the website. You sign in on the home page, and then extra buttons appear on the pages you already know.

Part 1 - Signing in

1 Open your browser and go to:
`https://junsgarden.zapto.org/`
You will see: The home page, with a large photo at the top.

2 Scroll down a little. Find the box titled Login.
You will see: Two empty boxes, one for Username and one for Password.

3 Type your username. Then type your password. Then click Login.
You will see: The Login box is replaced by the words Welcome back and your name.

The Login box on the home page. This is the whole admin sign-in.

What signing in changes

Edit and Delete buttons appear on plant cards and on journal posts. Visitors who are not signed in never see them.

A box for writing a new journal post appears on the home page.

Nothing else changes. The pages look the same otherwise.

Part 2 - The five pages

These are the tabs along the top of every page.

Home	Journal posts, weather, tips, guestbook	Write, edit and delete journal posts
Quick Search	A simple list of plants	Nothing extra
Full Catalog	Every plant, with search and A-Z	Edit or delete a plant
Data	About 30 boxes of statistics	Nothing extra
Gallery	The photo library	Nothing extra

Part 3 - Writing a journal post

1 Sign in first, using Part 1.
You will see: The words Welcome back.

2 Go to the Home page. Scroll to the section titled Garden News & Updates.
You will see: A box titled Post a New Update.

3 Click the box marked Post Title. Type a title.

4 Click the large box underneath. Type what you want to say.

5 If you want a photo, click the file button and choose one.
You will see: The photo's filename.

6 Click the button to post it.
You will see: Your new post appearing at the top of the list.

Which tool for which job

Plants - use the Orchestrator (guide one). It has the proper form with every field.

Journal posts - use the website, as above. The Orchestrator cannot write journal posts.

Photos of plants - use the Orchestrator.

Photos in a journal post - use the website.

The Android App

Juns Garden, on your phone

The app shows the same plants as the website, because it reads the same database. Its real advantage is outdoors: it scans the QR codes printed on the plant tags in the beds, so you can identify a plant while standing in front of it.

Installing it

1. On your phone, open the browser and go to:
   `jasonagibson.zapto.org/jason/android`
   You will see: A page listing the apps.
2. Find Juns Garden. Tap Download APK.
   You will see: A download starting. It is 66 MB, so it takes a moment.
3. When it finishes, tap the downloaded file.
   You will see: A warning from Android about installing from an unknown source.
4. This warning is expected. Allow installing from your browser when the phone asks.
   You will see: A screen asking whether to install.
5. Tap Install.
   You will see: The app installed on your phone.

About that warning

Android shows the warning because this app is not from the Play Store. The warning is doing its job.

It is safe to continue in this one case, because you know exactly where the file came from: Jason's own website.

Do not use that reasoning for APK files from anywhere else. The rule is 'I know who made this', not 'the warning is annoying'.

When something is wrong

1	Reload the page with the F5 key.
2	If a plant you added is missing, reload again. It is usually there.
3	If the Login box keeps coming back, the password was not accepted. Try twice more, slowly, with Caps Lock off.
4	If it is still wrong, tell Jason: what you were doing, what you expected, and what happened instead.

Never do these

1. Never click Delete unless you are certain. Deleting cannot be undone.

2. Never share your username or password, even with somebody who says they are helping with the website.

3. Never install an APK that did not come from Jason's site.
